This also occurs through encouraging them to improve their living conditions, keeping pace with development, helping them to unleash their individual projects and providing emergency aid that supports the persistence of needy families. Families' empowerment programs serve more than 1,200 marginalized families annually.

WOMEN EMPOWERMENT

Palestine Tomorrow for Social Development has adopted the program of women empowerment and has made it one of its main objectives. This is because the Palestinian women have an important role in building the society and supporting men overcome all obstacles facing the Palestinian society.

The needs of Palestinian women vary according to their status. Some of them are breadwinners working to meet the needs of their families and children and the others are widows and divorces.

Through this program, the organization aims to raise women's awareness of their rights and duties to enhance their role in society and develop their cultural and health levels. Furthermore, it trains them how to manage their own business starting with planning, implementation, and procurement and marketing management ending with economic development, promoting living conditions and meeting various needs. Moreover, it directs and enables them to start their own projects matching their nature and surroundings to be self-reliant in improving their living conditions.

This happens through providing them with the necessary cultural, educational and financial means and developing social relations towards greater balance and stability. Women's empowerment projects benefit more than 1,000 women annually, as well.

YOUTH EMPOWERMENT

Young people are the children of yesterday and wealth of the future. They are the fundamental basis of society's development as they have great energy and creativity and they can make their society advanced through combining their efforts. At all times and places, young people are the mainstay of the nation, the secrets of its renaissance and the leaders of its path to future prosperity.

Youth constitute the largest group in the Palestinian society and therefore, they need to invest their energies and build their capabilities to be able to make a better change in light of the conflict and the difficult social and economic crises in the Gaza Strip that have led to high rates of unemployment and poverty. The program aims to implement projects in order to qualify them for the labor market, train them to work, and support their ideas and initiatives. More than 1,000 Palestinians benefit from the Youth Empowerment Programme.

PSYCHOLOGICAL SUPPORT

It aims to provide children with psychological support to help them in getting rid of abnormal behaviors and post-traumatic stress disorders (PTSD) caused by the situation in the Gaza Strip through psychological first aid, abreaction for children and mothers and individual psychotherapy sessions. In collaboration with international organizations, such as Save the Children, Palestine Tomorrow for Social Development has implemented many psychological support sessions for marginalized families in the eastern regions of the Gaza Strip. In addition, the organization has made a great number of recreational trips for orphans and impoverished families to alleviate their suffering and make them feel happy. Psychological support program serves more than 10,000 people annually, as well.

EDUCATIONAL SUPPORT

Gazan students suffer from conflicts and crises in various fields, which affects the educational environment.

Referring to the Attitudes and Practices (KPA) questionnaire prepared by UNICEF, the age group (15-17) is the most vulnerable. Therefore, interventions must be specifically targeted at this group of adolescents exposed to violence.

So, interventions should be particularly directed towards this group of adolescents exposed to violence that probably be applied in other areas in their lives later. Consequently, educational process support program aims to create a suitable educational environment for this group and develop the education methodology with international methods to produce a generation capable of creativity and expression. Furthermore, this program benefiting more than 2000 of adolescent students aims to carry out a set of directed educational initiatives.
